INFORMATIVE TEXT WRITING & PARAGRAPH MECHANICS

1. Academic Tone & Vocabulary

Review your notes on formal writing style.

Rewrite the following informal sentence using a formal academic tone and precise vocabulary:

"Pythons are crazy huge and totally ruin the environment!"

2. Paragraph Structure & Mechanics

Look up the roles of different sentences within an informative paragraph.

A. Topic Sentence: What is its purpose in a paragraph?

B. Supporting Details: What type of information should go here?

C. Essay Conclusion: How should an effective conclusion structure wrap up an essay?

3. Visual Aids & Graphics

Think about why writers include charts, tables, or diagrams alongside text.

Why do informative writers use visual aids or graphics when presenting complex data?

CONDUCTING RESEARCH & SYNTHESIS

1. Research Questions & Search Strategies

Check your research guide on formulating inquiry questions and search keywords.

A. Research Questions: Why is a clear research question important before you start looking for data?

B. Refining Queries: If your initial online search yields irrelevant results, what specific steps should you take to refine your search strategy?

2. Primary vs. Secondary Sources

Define each source type and provide an example.

Source Type	Definition (In your own words)	Example
Primary Source
Secondary Source

3. Paraphrasing vs. Direct Quoting & Synthesizing

Review the rules for using another author's words vs. ideas, and how to combine multiple texts.

A. Paraphrasing vs. Direct Quoting: What is the main structural and formatting difference between paraphrasing an author and directly quoting them?

B. Synthesizing Information: Explain what it means to synthesize information from multiple texts.

EVALUATING SOURCES & USING TEXTUAL EVIDENCE

1. Source Credibility Criteria

Look up criteria used to test whether a source is trustworthy.

A. Authority & Publisher Reputation: What should you check about an author or publisher to evaluate credibility?

B. Domain Extensions: Why are .gov and .edu domains usually considered more reliable than .com or .net?

C. Publication Dates: Why is the date of publication critical when researching rapidly changing fields?

2. Plagiarism & Evidence Delivery

Review note-taking habits and speaking strategies for presenting facts.

A. Preventing Plagiarism: What note-taking techniques can you use while researching to prevent accidental plagiarism?

B. Explicit Verbal Attributions: What is the purpose of using verbal attributions (e.g., "According to researcher...") when delivering evidence in a speech or presentation?

C. Structured Outlines: How do structured outlines help organize evidence before speaking or writing?

LITERATURE STUDIES: COLLECTION 1 (OURSELVES AND OTHERS)

HRW Collections Guide: Log into my.hrw.com → Go to Collection 1: Ourselves and Others. Answer the questions below using details from each text.

1. "What, of This Goldfish, Would You Wish?"

Re-read or review your notes on Yonatan's project and Sergei's background.

What does this story show about cultural differences, communication barriers, and loneliness?

2. "My So-Called Enemy"

Focus on the setting of the summer camp.

How does the summer camp setting help bridge cultural and political divides between the young women?

3. "The Universal Declaration of Human Rights"

Consider the core global purpose of this document.

What is the fundamental global purpose of shared human rights outlined in this text?

4. "Towards a True Refuge" by Aung San Suu Kyi

Look up Suu Kyi's explanation of true peace vs. simple lack of conflict.

Why does the author argue that true peace requires more than just the absence of physical warfare?

5. "Without Title" by Diane Glancy

Focus on the father's life in the city vs. his heritage.

How does the father preserve his Native American heritage while living in an urban environment?

LITERATURE STUDIES: COLLECTION 2 (HUMANS AND NATURE)

HRW Collections Guide: Log into my . hrw . com → Go to Collection 2: Humans and Nature. Answer the questions below using details from each text.

1. "Hope for Animals and Their World" by Jane Goodall

Focus on the main lesson regarding endangered species.

What role do dedicated individuals play in preventing animal species from going extinct?

2. "Called Out" by Barbara Kingsolver

Look up how plants adapt to harsh environments like deserts.

What does this text explain about natural adaptations and human fascination with natural beauty?

3. "In Defense of Everglade Pythons" by Andrew Revkin

Consider how media reports frame invasive species.

Why does the author encourage readers to look past sensationalized "monster" stories about pythons?

4. "My Life as a Bat" by Margaret Atwood

Think about perspective in this story.

How does using a non-human (bat) perspective challenge human assumptions of superiority?

5. "The Seventh Man" by Haruki Murakami

Focus on the protagonist's internal struggle after the wave.

How does the story explore natural disasters, tragedy, trauma, and internal conflict?

LITERARY CONCEPTS & DEVICES

1. Figurative Language Definitions & Examples

Write your own definition and create an original example for each device.

Literary Device	Definition (In your own words)	Original Example
Metaphor
Simile
Personification

2. Literary Analysis Concepts

Define these key terms used to analyze literature.

A. Character's Internal Conflict: What is an internal conflict, and how does it differ from an external conflict?

B. Symbolism: How do authors use symbols to add deeper meaning to a story?

C. Narrative Point of View (POV): Explain how point of view affects what the audience thinks and feels about characters.

D. Underlying Theme: How do you determine the underlying theme of a literary text?

DEEP REFLECTION & SYNTHESIS TASKS

Task 1: Reflection on Collection 1 — Human Relationships (Ourselves and Others)

Reflect on all the stories in Collection 1 ("What, of This Goldfish, Would You Wish?", "My So-Called Enemy", "The Universal Declaration of Human Rights", "Towards a True Refuge", and "Without Title").

Prompt: Think about the overarching theme of human relationships. Why is it often difficult for individuals from different cultures, political backgrounds, or generations to connect? Based on what you read in these texts, what does it take for human beings to truly understand one another, overcome conflict, and build meaningful relationships?

Task 2: Reflection on Collection 2 — Humans and Nature

Reflect on all the texts in Collection 2 ("Hope for Animals and Their World", "Called Out", "In Defense of Everglade Pythons", "My Life as a Bat", and "The Seventh Man").

Prompt: Think about the overall relationship between humans and the natural world. How do these texts challenge the idea that humans control nature? What responsibilities do humans have toward wildlife and the planet, and how should we cope when nature presents dangerous power or natural disasters?
